2. Mr. [REDACTED]'s assistant advised us verbally that the claim should not be approved. This opinion was based on the Agency's policy that educational allowances are designed to assist in covering the cost of educating children of civilian employees to the extent that the free public school system in the United States would provide education, were the employees and their children residing in the United States. The attendance at the [REDACTED] appears to be comparable to the education available in the free public school system in the United States and the allowance for such expense is a maximum educational allowance for that period.
